

Duke-American Transmission Co.

About Duke-American Transmission Co. (DATC)

Duke-American Transmission Co. is a transmission developer jointly owned by Duke Energy, the largest utility in the U.S., and American Transmission Co., a national leader in transmission development. Formed in 2011 to plan and develop strategic transmission projects across the U.S. and Canada, DATC partners share the same vision for transmission development.

From concept to completion, DATC is a transmission project life-cycle expert, ready to partner with stakeholders to achieve transmission goals, including:

- Transmission planning
- Building and facilitating regulatory relationships
- Navigating the regulatory process
- Stakeholder outreach
- Real estate, easement acquisition
- Transmission line, substation design
- Project management
- Commissioning
- Transmission system, line operation