About Market Interconnection Consulting Services (MICS)

MICS – Market Interconnection Consulting Services, was founded in 2010. Since that time we have grown from a single client in one RTO, to currently serving a number of clients in various RTOs across the US. We are first and foremost proponents of transparent/open and robust wholesale energy markets; with fair and open access for all types of market participants. We have and continue to rely on our staff's unique experiences, market + operational knowledge, and industry relationships to provide our clients value far beyond the cost of our services. We do so primarily for unaffiliated asset owning and non-asset owning market participants. Our services include but are not limited to: interpretation of RTO market trends (for all USA based RTOs), strategic development of all your RTO related businesses (operational and non-operational), outlooks on congestion and volatility of pricing, transmission arrangements/analytics, third party validation of load forecast software, independent review of competing power and energy supply offers for industrial/commercial/large retail electricity users.
