About Nasdaq Futures

Nasdaq Futures (NFX) brings a competitive mix of products, fees, innovative technology, and clearing services designed to meet the needs of ambitious traders. We provide the best pricing and platform for global energy and commodity traders seeking liquidity and lower fees. With the confidence of proven growth, breadth of product offerings and expertise, NFX delivers key benchmarks and significant cost savings that allow market participants to further diversify their portfolios while providing a valuable hedging tool. NFX offers:

- Energy and commodity futures in oil, gas, U.S. power, petrochemicals and ferrous products as well as new cleared dry and tanker freight products
- A competitive fee structure committed to the energy market aiming to provide transparent fee reductions that can be over 50 percent versus the incumbent exchanges
- Cost-effective horizontal clearing model operated by the Options Clearing Corporation (OCC)
- Open and neutral access via standardized APIs and leading front-end providers
- Over 230 cleared power contracts in PJM, MISO, ISO-NE, NYISO, and ERCOT including 76 cleared contracts in the most liquid zones within the PJM Interconnection

Futures traders may transact on NFX through direct market access or via a futures commission merchant order management system. Visit us at business.nasdaq.com/futures for more information on how Nasdaq Futures will evolve and to learn how you can gain direct access. We're reimagining markets of today to rewrite the status quo in energy and commodity futures.
